

DC Villages

FACT SHEETS ARE A JOINT PROJECT OF IONA AND THE DC DEPARTMENT OF AGING AND COMMUNITY LIVING

A Village is a grassroots group of neighbors helping neighbors. A Village makes it easier for older adults to keep living safely and actively in their own homes. Villages are run by volunteers and paid staff. Most Villages recruit volunteers to help with a variety of tasks. Villages often hold social programs and classes, and may partner with local businesses to offer discounts.

WHAT SERVICES DO VILLAGES OFFER?

Each Village offers their own unique set of services. These services might include rides to medical appointments, grocery shopping, home repairs, or social calls. Most Villages also hold events so members can meet each other. Some Villages teach classes like computer skills and fitness. Some even offer professional services like social work.

WHO CAN JOIN?

If you want to age in your home with support from neighbors then a Village may be a helpful resource for you. Most Villages offer membership to older residents of the neighborhoods they serve. Some also offer membership to younger residents.

MEMBERSHIP FEES

Most Villages charge membership fees. However, these fees vary by Village. In the District, most Villages charge between $40 and $80 per month, though some charge as little as a few dollars per month. Usually, the fee reflects the number of services offered. To help you afford the fees, many Villages offer payment options or financial aid. Others charge different fees for different membership levels. Contact your local Village to learn more.

WHAT IF MY NEIGHBORHOOD DOESN'T HAVE A VILLAGE?

Every DC Village started after a group of neighbors decided one was needed. If a Village doesn't exist in your neighborhood, consider starting your own. The city offers neighbors support to start a Village. One resource is the city's free booklet, How to Start a Village in the District of Columbia. You can download the booklet here: dcoa.dc.gov/service/senior-villages.

HOW TO JOIN A VILLAGE?

Each Village has its own application process. You can only join the Village that serves your neighborhood. To join a Village, contact a Village serving your neighborhood.
